More than one-third of youth living in homes without full-time parents are now poor or nearly poor, according to a new report from Georgetown University's Center on Education and the Workforce. The Center's study, "Child Poverty in the United States," found that 34 percent of the nation's children in these homes were poor or nearly poor in 2013. That figure was more than double the percentage of poor or near-poor children living in households with two parents working full-time and year-round in 2013. In 2013, 20 percent of poor children lived in homes with full-time parents. Related: After the recession, children living in homes with just a parent were more likely to live in poverty, though children in these homes have become less likely to be poor in recent years. Among children in homes with just one parent working, poverty rates fell from 18 percent in 2007 to 14 percent in 2012. The percentage of poor children in homes with one parent working and full-time year-round parents remained steady at about 17 percent throughout the recession and its aftermath. The Center's findings were released by the Census Bureau on Friday, coinciding with the Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP) reauthorization, the first time Congress has worked on the program since the

What's New In Desktop Presenter?

Desktop Presenter is an application that allows you to share live captures of custom or precise regions of your desktop or the fullscreen with any computer in your local network. Does not come with an interface per se, but rather a settings window The setup is a fast and forthright operation that is unlikely to take too much of your time. The application does not come with a GUI, but with a rather small settings window where you can select the desired source along with the area that you want to stream. It is worth mentioning that the program detects the maximum resolution your computer is capable of, so you can choose between that or a window of the tool that is the center of your streaming. As far as the selection go, you can opt between full screen, custom region, custom centered and fixed centered areas. Can work as standalone or within various broadcasting apps The application can work as standalone, but it can also be launched from within Wirecast. In the eventuality that you decide to access it from the later, then you will be happy to learn that Wirecast detects the application automatically. Then again, you need to access the settings and make sure that you set the utility as the main source. In case you choose to use it as standalone, then you can specify the source, selecting and whether you prefer to include 3D compatibility and capture audio. Irrespective of how you prefer to access the application, you need to make sure that you have port 7272 opened in the firewall. Moreover, if you do not have Bonjour Services installed, then you need to enter the TCP/IP address of the computer you are broadcasting manually. A useful tool for streaming live captures of your desktop Regardless of whether you are holding a live tutorial on how to operate an application or perhaps are making a guide on how to complete a quest in a video game, then perhaps Desktop Presenter could come in handy. 3DDesigner Max 2018 3DDesigner Max 2018 is an intuitive, easy to learn solution that will help you create and model any type of part. Start creating your parts from simple and basic shapes or use the built-in library of ready-to-use parts. 3DDesigner Max 2018 will allow you to work as a single user or multiple users and will be able to import and export in a multitude of formats. As your parts are parametrized it will become even easier to edit them and to create additional parts from the original one. In addition, you can use parametrized meshes in the same project and you can use the same parametrization for shared models. With parametrized geometry, you can use sophisticated tools in order to create your part even more accurate. 2:10 AVE 2018 – Live streaming of the Design and Develop Conference – Part 1 AVE 2018 – Live streaming of the Design and Develop Conference – Part 1 AVE
